Declares Great Sums Are Being Wasted On Alcohol, Poverty Created and Health Destroyed

"Temperance or abstinence?" that many 'wild parties,' as we would catalogue them in our vernacular, were held in his domain. His daughter eventually heard of these, and felt the natural urge to join in the fun. She entreated her father, but he was gently adamant. "But why, father," she asked, "it will do me no harm." The wise old king picked up a piece of half-burnt coal from the hearth and handed it to the princess; she hesitated, but he pressed it upon her, saying, "It will do you no harm." She took the coal, and immediately, the lilac-like whiteness of her hand was marred. "Father!" she exclaimed, "why did you give me that? One cannot be too careful in handling unclean things." "Quite right, my daughter," he replied, "that is just the lesson I would teach you; we cannot touch an unclean thing without becoming soiled ourselves." "If drink should tempt you, 'Touch not the unclean thing.' Should you challenge my claim that it is unclean, I offer you the following case in support of my statement.

"It does more harm than good. One gets a little weary of hearing the excuse that 'liquor in moderate quantities is good for you.' So often, that is merely an excuse for indulgence.

"If taken as a medicine, we are told that liquor is often beneficial. I would be very foolish to disagree with such a claim, for I know it to be true. On one occasion, liquor was prescribed for the preacher, but in such small quantities, that taking it every day, one put lasted more than three weeks. But at the time I thought the medical profession could have given me something else just as effective, and I have since discovered that to be the case. However, taking a teaspoonful of (Page 8, Col. 6)

Eat To Live—Give To Live—Is Message Of Mayor Emeritus, Dr. S. J. Boyd

The Era obtained the following war savings campaign message from Dr. S. J. Boyd, former mayor of Newmarket:

"The money given the government by the purchase of war saving stamps we hope will keep us alive.

"This saving and giving by the great mass of the people will be a mighty help, combined with all our other war efforts by keeping the Germans from bombing our cities, killing many of us and taking our country from us.

"When this war is over we will be happy to think that our money helped to beat the Hun and that the money will be returned to us with interest. There is going to be a terrible depression following the war. Consequently we will be very thankful to have this money we are investing now come back to us with interest to tide us over the depression."

Newmarket Reaches Half-Way Mark In War Savings Campaign — Canvass Yourself

Pledges made are 746, with the objective still 1,500, P. J. Tod, war savings chairman, reports this week. That is just about half way. A job half done is a job begun—well begun.

The 746 is made up of 640 employee pledges and 106 bank pledges. It is evident that there are a lot more bank pledges to come. "Don't wait for a canvasser," says Mr. Tod. "See your banker or employer. Pledge yourself to regular buying of war certificates."

In charge of war savings pledges at nearby points are: Sharon, James Parker, Welby Stevens; Queensville, E. J. Norris; Mount Albert, Byron Stiver, Lyman F. Pearson; Holland Landing, S. R. Goodwin. Mr. Tod, who is organizing the entire district, asks that rural residents contact their banker or one of these campaign captains.

An interesting angle of the local campaign is that

DANCE HELPS CHILDREN OF "BOMB-LAND"

LIONS START NEW FUND
TO HELP BRITISH WAR
VICTIMS

USE DRILL-HALL

Invitations have been issued for the grand ball, sponsored by the Newmarket Lions club, to be held in the Newmarket military camp drill-hall on Friday evening, March 7.

The dance will be in aid of the Canadian Lions clubs Princess Elizabeth British Children War Victims' Fund. There will be continuous dancing, lunch, canteen and free parking.

Two orchestras, Max Boag's and Art West's, will be in attendance.

While invitations have been issued, the committee wish to stress the point that anyone desiring an invitation may obtain the same by applying to Dr. C. E. VanderVoort or H. E. Lambert by letter or telephone. No complete list was available for the committee and additional names are invited.

This is an excellent chance to see the drill-hall without being in uniform, and to enjoy the splendid floor and spacious and comfortable lounge-rooms.

The Princess Elizabeth British Children War Victims' Fund is a new appeal being launched by the Associated Lions clubs of Ontario and Quebec and it is expected that every Lions club in Canada will participate in raising funds for this purpose.

For months past the Lions organization has been working with the War Service Committee at Ottawa, endeavoring to have some special work in connection with the war delegated to them and after much negotiating covering various suggested activities, the seal of approval has been given this new war service appeal. This fund will not conflict with the present British war (Page 8, Col. 4) the Office Specialty Mfg. Co., with 450 local employees, has reported 519 pledges, the additional pledges coming from branch offices.

"England Expects Every Man To Do His Duty"—From Sick Bed Comes Message

"The lion lay there fighting and you bet they gave their dough!"

From a sick bed comes a fighting war savings message from J. E. Nesbitt, former mayor of Newmarket, prompting the above reversal of the famous line about lion-hearted Sir Richard Grenville and his little Revenge in the days of iron men and wooden ships.

"Let us all help in the war according to our ability," says Mr. Nesbitt. "Many of us would like to be in uniform but on account of our age and physical condition are unable to help in this way.

"But there are other opportunities for us to help. Our government needs money more than anything else. What are we doing about it? Are we lending our money to the government. Or are we standing idly by waiting to see if George will do it?"

"No, a thousand times, no. When we think of the sacrifice the people of England and our own Canadian sons are making over there, we should do everything possible here to increase our war effort. If money is most needed, then let us lend our last cent to the government. We can be heroes in lending money, as well as enlisting in the army.

"We Canadians must not forget that Canada, the brightest gem in the British Commonwealth of Nations, is our country. And we must protect it. Let us rise to the occasion by offering our services in whatever capacity is most needed to prosecute the war effort.

"Remember the words of Nelson: 'England expects every man this day to do his duty.'"

Don't wait for someone to canvass you. Volunteer your help. Go to a bank or your employer and arrange to invest in war savings certificates regularly.

U.S. FIRM HELPS WITH BRITISH WAR EFFORT

A happy event was the ten-year anniversary dinner of the Dixon Pencil Co. of Canada held at the King Edward hotel on Friday evening.

Members of the municipal council and former members and representatives of the other Newmarket industries were among the guests.

J. S. Law, general manager, president, J. H. Skimmerhorn, president of the parent company in New Jersey, was the recipient of a silver tray, a gift from the town of Newmarket.

Mayor Dr. L. W. Dales called on J. E. Nesbitt, mayor at the time the Dixon Pencil Co. came to Newmarket, to make the presentation.

Mr. Skimmerhorn told of the support which his company is giving to the British cause, even encouraging the Canadian company so to conduct its affairs that it will pay the maximum taxes to the Canadian government. He paid tribute to the work of Mr. Law and Frank Courtney, secretary-treasurer.

"I don't know any town anywhere that supports its industry more loyally," Aubrey Davis, president of the Davis Leather Co., said in the course of a short tribute to the Dixon company.

A. J. Davis, W. H. S. Cane, N. L. Mathews, K.C., who were among the honored guests, together with Mr. Nesbitt made up the party which ten years ago went to New Jersey to interview the Dixon company.

B. S. Hulse, a sales representative of the company who was influential in securing the establishment of the Newmarket branch, was among the head-table guests.

Markham Aces Take 2 Straight To Win Junior Group Crown

Markham Wins Convincing Victory In Two Round
Encounter, With Bangays Banging In Goals

By JACK PEPPIATT

The ghosts of another season of hockey took possession of the Newmarket Juniors' dressing-room in Markham Monday night. It's all over but the cheering and booing and once more Newmarket is left with the fruits of victory snatched from her by Markham, but also left with a pleasant taste of a good season of hockey still in her mouth. Markham captured the O.H.A. Junior C group (No. 7) championship 7-3 on their own ice Monday.

Sabiston and B. Bangay scored the only two goals of the first period. Markham scored another three in the second. Dickson, who played a star game for the locals, got the only Newmarket goal in this period. Broughton assisted on his first one, but Dickson got the other on a solo.

Cliff Gunn scored the last Newmarket goal after 6.10 of the third period. Northcote and B. Bangay later scored to cement the game and championship for Markham.

Markham won a convincing victory and no one tried to argue that point. They were speedy, they passed like veterans and seemed to know what to do at all times.

Newmarket players felt that Markham had their number and a good share of the breaks. The invaders were at the peak of their perfection just at play-off time, the wrong time so far as Newmarket was concerned. Maybe next year the Bangays won't be around and a different story will be told.

Newmarket: goal, Carr; defence, Bone and Myers; centre, Jelley; wings, Luck and Hamilton; alternates, Dickson, Broughton, Gibbon, Gunn, Watson.

Markham: goal, J. Harper; defence, B. Harper and Meharg; centre, B. Bangay; wings, Baker and Lawrie; alternates, Clarke, Northcote, Rowe, Sabiston, H. Bangay, Bowdway.

Markham showed definite superiority. They seemed to be faster and stronger than at any other time during the season. They got the breaks and Newmarket got none.

Newmarket: goal, Carr; defence, Gunn and Myers; centre, Broughton; wings, Dickson and Gibbon; alternates, Bone, MacInnis, Luck, Jelley, Hamilton.

PRAYER COUNSELLED

The following pastoral letter was read in all the Catholic churches of Ontario last Sunday.

"It is an exhortation to the Catholic people of Ontario to try to realize the crucial times through which our beloved country is passing and especially now during this holy season of Lent to pray, to fast and to do penance," said Rev. Dr. W. D. Muckle, pastor of St. John's church, Newmarket. "In compliance with the wish of the archbishops and bishops of Ontario a high mass will be offered on Sunday, March 2, to intercede our Divine Lord for peace with victory."

"After the last mass on Sunday morning the blessed sacrament will be exposed on the altar until 3 o'clock in the afternoon when a solemn holy hour in honor of Our Lord in the blessed sacrament will be held."

The pastoral letter follows:

"We stand upon the threshold of the Lenten season, the memories of which centre in the cross of Christ, bringing to us through the silent lips of the crucified Master his own exhortation to prayer, to self-denial and to penance for our sins. Our divine Saviour's message comes to us this year at a moment when our beloved country and the whole British empire faces the most fateful crisis in its history. To quote the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill in his address of Feb. 9, 'We may be sure that the war is going to enter upon a phase of greater violence.'"

"We are living through a crucial hour, darkened by the hateful iniquities of infidel dictators. Our Christian civilization and culture, our democratic way of life, our civic and religious (Page 3, Col. 5)

FALL PROVES FATAL TO INVALID OF 90

Rising from a sick bed, when he was nearly well, Robert Martin Stoutenburgh fell and broke his leg in his room on Monday night. He was removed to York county hospital, where he died yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Stoutenburgh was in his 91st year. The funeral service will take place on Saturday at 3 p.m. Interment will be at Victoria Square.

Born at Victoria Square, Mr. Stoutenburgh grew up there and married Mary Ann Peach, who died 30 years ago. Mr. Stoutenburgh farmed for 50 years at Victoria Square, and came to Newmarket seven years ago to live with his son, Chester Stoutenburgh.

There are two sons and two daughters living: Louis, Victoria Square; Mrs. Alice Graham, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Arthur Chester, Port Union, Ont.; and Chester, Newmarket. Two sons are deceased.

HERE IS LAST MINUTE DOPE ON CARNIVAL

The skating carnival for the British war victims is expected to be the biggest event of its kind ever held in Newmarket.

The program includes an exhibition by Toronto Granite club skaters, comedy acts by clowns on skates, dare-devil ice acts, music by Newmarket's two bands, Citizens' band and R.S.A. bugle band.

The money raised will go to the Telegram war victims' fund to assist those suffering in Great Britain from German bombings.

Whether you attend the carnival or not, every purchaser of an admission ticket for this worthy cause will participate in the grand drawing of over $200 in prizes, which will take place at the close of the program.

The prizes are on exhibition in Morrison's Men's Wear window. Tickets may be had at the Bank of Toronto, Lundy's, Bowser's, Morrison's or Brunton's.

Every citizen is urged by the committee to be sure to get a ticket so that all may have a part in helping this worthy cause.

A CALL TO PATRIOTS

"Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more!" So far as we can remember that is from Shakespeare's Henry V, but the important point is its appropriateness as Newmarket goes into the fourth week of the war savings campaign. We might have chosen as our text with some truth, "It's a long way to go," but we prefer the optimism of King Harry. If we will all pull together, every person appointing himself a canvasser to canvass himself, we can take the fortress with one more assault.

Here is a chance for true patriotism to assert itself—the patriotism that calls for the doing of the unsung act of lending money to the government to support the heroism of others. It is not just the buying of a few war stamps that is wanted. It is a serious pledge to buy regularly every week or every month a certain number of stamps, so that the government may be assured of a steady income. That pledge may amount to a pledge to do without certain luxuries or even seeming necessities, but in the long run the individual loses nothing. He helps his country now, and later his country helps him, returning the money with interest at a time when the lender may need it more than he does today.

Appoint yourself a canvasser—canvass yourself—see your employer or a bank today!

A SIX-SHOOTER TELLS A SHOOTING STORY

There are not so many "columnists" in Canada as there are in the United States, but we venture to say that the U.S.A. hasn't many six-shooters. Hugh Templin, editor of the Fergus News-Record, writes six columns of opinion and anecdote every week. Perhaps we shouldn't say "writes it," for actually he sits down at the linotype and "sets" it. Yes, he just sits and sets. And not by fits and starts either, for the columns are wide and the six of them take up a full page. It may be guessed that the subjects are many and varied, in fact, as various, it is announced at the top of the page, as "shoes and ships and sealing-wax and cabbages and kings."

We like last week's rabbit stories. One story tells of a rabbit's dance which the editor and his family witnessed one night from their kitchen window. Six or seven cottontails, who had come to eat wheat thrown out on the snow for the pheasants, stayed to dance. They formed a circle while two or more of their number played tag in the centre. The game went on for half an hour until the rabbits tired and went home.

Jack-rabbits, however, are a nuisance in Wellington and Waterloo counties, and the Fergus News-Record tells how the village of Linwood, between Elmira and Milverton, invited a Toronto shooting club out for a rabbit drive. There were over 100 Toronto hunters, who arrived on a Saturday at 6 a.m. by special train. The ladies' aid of a local church profitably served breakfast, lunch and supper to the hunters (300 meals is a nice day's work for any church organization—with no tickets to sell). The local store did a big day's business, selling out their stock in some lines completely. The farmers got rid of the rabbits and sold the visitors chickens and other produce.

Everybody was happy except the Waterloo Fish and Game Protective Association, who "saw all their sport being cleaned out and want the Ontario government to ban these big drives." One member wanted the Toronto people to confine their hunting to "their own area," but says the Fergus editor, "did not specify what they could shoot in that city—though perhaps he might have done so."

GUNNING AT SANTA CLAUS

A number of Ontario newspapers were critical of the Ontario government recently when it purchased full-page newspaper space to tell its side of the Ottawa Sirois conference fiasco. Some people thought they were biting the hand that fed them, but that is one of the hard parts of operating a newspaper. The newspaper is a public trust and the editor or publisher should do or say the thing which he believes is in the public interest even if it hurts himself or his friends. It is no secret, however, that there is as much difference between the way one newspaper and another applies this principle as there is between one man's conscience and another's. Now we come to the story we started out to tell. George James, publisher and editor of the Canadian Statesman, Bowmanville, was in Syracuse recently, addressing New York state weekly publishers, and one of them, who had seen the Statesman's remarks about the Sirois advertising, said: "Why George, you'd shoot Santa Claus!"

THAT GRAND JURY -- THE PEOPLE

Ain't government grand? Government of, by and for, to and from, the people, as manifested at Ottawa and Toronto, is no worse than we the people and sometimes not much better. It is as inconsistent and inefficient as we are, at times brilliantly good and at times scandalously bad.

The Ontario attorney-general would abolish grand juries because every man will be needed for the war effort, but the Ontario government of which he is a member has newsprint mills restricted to about half time, and men kept idle half their time in newsprint localities. Why not let them serve the other half of the week as grand jurors?

The dominion government talks of a total war effort but at the same time, instead of seeing that every citizen is put to productive work of some kind, is (or has been) paying out thousands of dollars in relief. Can anyone forecast what kind of a country we will have when the war is over and war spending ceases, if we can't put all to work now? We shall have all our old problems and interest-bearing new ones. The question is whether we will have the same leaders—the same makers of economy policy—and if we have, whether we will give them different instructions.

The dominion government talks of the need for economy on the part of its citizens but pays to have milk trucked to Toronto and back to Newmarket (for the military training camp) for no good reason at all. If the government can afford to pay a bonus for its milk, that bonus should go to the producers. The milk should be purchased locally from the local dairies, which could quite efficiently provide the camp's milk at a saving.

When we say that government is a reflection of "us, the people," we do not mean that any of us are foolish enough to go to Toronto to buy our milk, but many of us have been known to go that far, spending $2 for transportation and half a day of our time, in chase of a will-o-the-wisp bargain allegedly involving a saving of a few cents.

However, Messrs. King and Hepburn, even though we own up to occasional mismanagement of our private affairs, we are not resigned to mismanagement of our public affairs.

BUILDING ON WHAT ISN'T THERE

Henry Ford is credited with having said that "the United States should give both England and the Axis powers the tools to keep on fighting until they both collapse." He sincerely "hopes" that neither England nor the Axis powers will win the struggle." When one first reads that, one gets the impression that Mr. Ford is being offensive, but to study it tolerantly is to find a not unintelligent thought buried there. Before the war started that was the hope of all of us, that neither side would win, in other words, that there would be no war.

But once a war is started the situation changes. We do not dare stop short of victory, for fear that the enemy would use the breathing-spell to prepare for a new attack. Before the war we did not believe that he would be so mad as to plunge the world into war, and so we were not terribly alarmed about an armed peace, but now we know that what Nazi Germany will do once Nazi Germany might do again.

War is started now, and while all British people are determined that they will win, few are simple enough to suppose that a military victory will settle our problem. A military victory will just be the first step, with many difficult steps ahead. The job will not be finished but will be a challenge to able statesmen and tolerant and well-informed peoples. Mr. Ford might be right that the best hope of a sound peace would be after an exhausting stalemate rather than after a victory, but it would be fatal for the Allies to fight for a tie. That would be a sure way to lose to those who are fighting for victory. The Allies must fight for a victory and they will win a victory.

But once the victory is won then we should proceed as though the result had been a stalemate. There lies whatever value there is in Mr. Ford's thought, even though that thought is unacceptable to us at the moment. After the last war we proceeded as though we had won a victory (and of course we had), and dictated a peace to the vanquished, with the result that we eventually lost all we had fought for, namely, peace. After this war it is the hope of thousands of thoughtful people in Britain, Canada, the United States and everywhere throughout the world that the Allies will accept their victory and then proceed to make the sort of peace that would be made if neither side won.

British people did not seek this war, and would not seek any war, because they have learned that in the modern world no one wins a war. The losers lose and the winners lose. And just because others who have not yet learned that lesson have forced us into war we should not make the mistake in victory, of grasping again at what isn't there.

Some people will be disappointed at first, of course, but we think that our leaders will make a peace based on the belief that, while one clique in one nation deliberately and wantonly made this war, conditions which made the war possible were world-wide and that many nations made decisions and tolerated internal conditions which ultimately contributed to the war. There will also be recognition that the last war, with its aftermath of poverty and economic distress, was a principal cause of this war. The Allies will use their victory, we are confident, to bring together all nations in a co-operative, forward, constructive effort.

UNEXPLAINED D.S.T.

The following item in the Orillia Packet and Times explains the purpose of winter daylight saving time in Ontario, to stagger meal-hours and so keep down the peak load on the system. The item explains that Orillia is not in the Ontario Hydro system, but does not tell why Orillia is on daylight saving time. There must be a good reason, for Orillia can't be excused in lighting and power-ing.

"Some municipalities are clamoring to have daylight saving made general throughout Canada, for the sake of uniformity. But uniformity would defeat the very object which induced the dominion government to pass the order-in-council requiring towns that had adopted daylight saving for the summer months to continue it during the winter. That object was to stagger the noon-hour peaks on the electric power plants, by making them come an hour apart. While this has not affected Orillia, because our plants are independent of the Hydro, Orillians have rather enjoyed the long evenings" that daylight saving has afforded, which have to a great extent offset the dark mornings, and we have heard no grumbling here. After all, the lack of uniformity is a small inconvenience if it contributes in any degree to Canada's war effort."

WHAT OTHERS THINK SHOULD CREATE NO HARDSHIPS
(Brampton Conservator)

The dominion government announcement that it would cease to contribute toward the cost of direct relief at the end of March may sound tragic to some, but it should create no hardships for either the provinces or the municipalities. One of the unfortunate effects of the dominion and provincial relief grants has been the tendency of the municipality to go out high, wide and handsome in the matter of relief. The old idea of thrift has gone by the board, and seasonal workers have been taught to apply for relief as soon as steady work has ceased. In this way we have been breeding a group of people who look to the government, municipal, provincial and federal, every time they face a bit of hardship.

We recall the story once told us by a worker in one of Canada's largest automobile factories. He was very much dissatisfied with his lot, and explained that it was absolutely essential that he go on relief each winter. In delving a little deeper into his financial affairs, he admitted quite frankly that in the eight months he had worked he had earned $1,400, but when work stopped he was broke, so he had to go on relief. He forgot about the thousands of Canadians who don't earn that much in 12 months, and he forgot about the old bulldog principle of avoiding charity unless it was absolutely essential. In essence he said "eat, drink, and be merry for tomorrow we may die." So he went blithely on his way, having a whale of a lot of fun while he was working and figuring on the government keeping him when he wasn't.

That was never the intention when direct relief was started, but that is what happened. In many places it became a racket. We could name a town or two where the granting of relief was used as a vote-getter by grasping politicians. We believe that it will be infinitely better for all concerned when the relief problem gets back to the municipalities, where it can best be controlled. The attitude has been that the governments have been paying a large share so the municipality could afford to be generous. The sooner we get back to the system of giving relief only where it is a genuine need, the sooner we are going to breed again the type of citizen of pioneer persuasion, who wasn't afraid of a little bit of hardship, and who didn't run crying to the government every time the going got tough. Genuine cases of need must be aided, but the sooner we realize that want and need are two different things, the sooner the relief question will be removed from the stigma of the racket class.

INDUSTRIES FOR SMALL CENTRES
(Listowel Banner)

It has been advocated by several for some time that the logical place for small industries is in the smaller centres throughout the province. Mr. R. C. Smith, veteran of the advertising profession, is another who backs up this idea. He says: "There will be any number of British industries coming to this country very shortly. One of the things which we must deplore has been the way industry has tended to become centralized in the great cities, thereby leaving the small towns without a means of livelihood. When these British firms come to our country and when new industries develop here we should make sure that they establish themselves in the small centres, where they can provide a ready market for our farmers and give employment that will keep our young men and women closer to the country and better distribute the population."

OLD PECKER GIVES SOME ADVICE

BY RUTH DINGMAN HEBB

"You Cedar Waxwings have certainly been splendid company for us this winter," Mrs. Woody, the Downy Woodpecker, said pleasantly to a group of Waxwings who were sitting placidly in some fruit trees, enjoying the winter sunshine. "You've been with us quite a good deal."

"We have enjoyed being around here," a handsome male Waxwing replied. "It has been rather a hard winter for the birds, though, with so much snow. We winter birds would rather have cold than an overabundance of the white stuff."

"Well, I have managed to get along all right, but I'm sure that other, less aggressive birds might have a hard time," said the Woodpecker lady. "Why, my gracious tail feathers!" she added in amazement as she saw another bird alighting near her.

"What's the matter, my dear?" asked a Waxwing. "You look as if you had seen a ghost. The newcomer only seems to be another of your own kind—a male Downy Woodpecker."

"Exactly," confided Mrs. Woody in undertones. "It's my father-in-law, old Pecker. Prof. Pecker, we all call him, he's such a wise old bird. I haven't seen him for months. He generally stays out in the woods now that he is getting on in years, and doesn't come into town much."

"I see you up there, Mrs. Woody—probably talking about me, too," Pecker at that point called up to her. "Come over here, I want to speak to you." Mrs. Woody hurried over to the other bird and asked him how he was and why he had come.

"I just came over to talk to you and Woody and my other relatives and see how you all were, here in town," explained Pecker. "I thought it was about time I checked up on you. Where's Woody? I couldn't find him anywhere."

"Did you try up by the cemetery?" Mrs. Woody asked him. "He likes the trees up there. But don't worry about him, he's somewhere with the gang. What did you want to see him about particularly?"

"I just wanted to give him a word of advice," said Pecker somewhat importantly. "Mrs. Pecker and I have been discussing this considerably lately and we have come to the conclusion that we are doing the right thing in advising you in this way."

"In what way?" asked Mrs. Woody curiously. "I haven't heard any advice yet, but I know you are very good at giving it."

"We feel that you and Woody had better have your spring nest out near us in the big woods, this year, and bring up your family in the country—away from town altogether—country air, and all that sort of thing, you know. It's healthier."

"I don't see why," Mrs. Woody disagreed. "We have always managed to get along all right staying in town or just outside, before this."

"But there are so many dangers in town—such a lot of people and so many cats and dogs, so much noise and confusion," Pecker argued. "And think of all the unpleasant Sparrows and Starling neighbors. What a place to bring up children."

"Dear me," said Mrs. Woody. "You are getting nervous. I don't see it from your point of view at all. We can manage very nicely in some secluded spot near here, if there are a few trees around. However, I'll give you a message to Woody."

After a few more remarks Pecker flew off again to visit other friends.

The poor old fellow is getting old and his nerves are bad."

NEWMARKET SCOUTS ATTEND CONFERENCE

About seven Scouts journeyed to Thornhill on Saturday to attend a Boy Scout conference. The conference was organized by Elmer Godfrey of Thornhill and Field Secretary Edgar Jones took charge of the day's proceedings. The morning session started off with lectures to patrol leaders on how to carry out their duties. Scoutmaster Gibson from Wiltondale gave a splendid demonstration on knot-tying. Scoutmaster Oliver from Lansing demonstrated the proper way to signal with flags (for semaphore code) and the buzzer for Morse code. Many more lectures were given and games were played in between talks just to liven things up.

At 6.30 p.m. the boys sat down to a marvellous banquet very ably put on by the ladies of the United church, where Rev. Eldridge Curvey, formerly of

WHAT WE CHERISH
By Isabel Inglis Colville

Have you ever imagined what it would be like to leave your home and your possessions—small or otherwise—at a moment's notice, and to be able to take only what you could carry in your arms or on your person?

This isn't idle imagining, for we all know that thousands of people, rich and poor, have been compelled to do just that, as the enemy advances on their homes.

Bad enough to leave the things one has gathered through the years, or the treasures handed down from one's ancestors, but worse by far, the uncertainty of the future—will the brutal hordes behind catch up with their fleeing victims, and then bomb or machine gun them, or will the end of the journey be a refugee camp, there to eke out a pitiful existence, the bounty of strangers? I've tried a dozen times, with small success, to know what I'd do. If the enemy were at our gates, the man of the house, and all the other men, would be away helping to stem the oncoming enemy. I do not drive a car, and mother is 88—what could I do?

That's what I've wondered as I looked at the pictures of refugees, old and young, torn from their homes and with no alternative but to go on—and on—to what?

It seems to me that if more people in this country and the United States would lose their vagueness and put themselves in the place of the refugees, they'd be more anxious to do their bit, and so make sure that no such fate can overtake our own people.

But what I really started out to ask was, if the fate of the refugee was yours, what would you take with you?

Now that isn't the senseless question it seems, for I'm sure you have all seen what extraordinary things people do in an emergency.

I remember watching a fire once; none of the family were at home and neighbors were trying to save what could be gotten out, but the house was frame, and it was a risky business. As I watched, the woman of the house ran past me, and before anyone could stop her, was in the house. In a few seconds, out she came again with a new hat in one hand and a loaf of bread in the other. She didn't have many new hats, and I suppose she had been picturing her appearance in it the next day, so it loomed large in her thoughts—the loaf of bread was a bit more hard to explain. It would hardly be adequate to feed her family—but there was her reaction. Perhaps if it came to the choosing point, I'd be no more sensible—so many of the things I love are big—my books and piano—think what it would be to leave those to be burned or pillaged—every worthwhile association of my life is wound round them; but you can't take a piano and seven hundred books under your arms and go forward to face an unknown destiny. Money and jewelry, if you had any, would be easy to carry, but what about the silver and china—your own and your mother's—what about the violin your better half made in the long winter evenings, what about the pictures—gifts—each of which have a story connected with it?

Our life is made up of so many little things—but things we cherish—and not for ourselves alone but for their associations. It wouldn't matter, even if I could get someone to drive the car, one cannot carry much in a car, the wrench from loved things would have to come, and we would then find the value we put on the most commonplace things—things we accept as if life owed them to us—but does it?

Have we earned the right to take them so matter-of-factly? Perhaps I haven't earned the right to much that I have, but two things would go in my pockets—two books and a pad of paper and a pencil—you might want a sewing kit—I know mother would—or a chisel or any one of a dozen things, but these are my own peculiar choice. And in my heart and the hearts of all those who might have to share this fate, if we do not support every effort to aid Britain and defend ourselves—would be the hatred of a system—whose people are machines—without pity or remorse, and a growing love for what we, through our negligence had lost—liberty of thought, action and conscience, and a stern determination that no power on earth should quench the flame of freedom.

Isn't this what must be on the minds of the conquered countries, and be seething to the boiling point in a million souls?

They say the love of liberty can never be quenched—if that is so, it must be—like yeast—working in the souls of the conquered—and in the end, will "leaven the whole lump." Surely what is worth cherishing is worth defending, and hearts, purses and hands must be ready to respond to the call to service.

Editor, The Era: I came upon the enclosed about 15 years ago and copied it, and when I saw Henry Ford said he could see no difference between Churchill and Hitler in their aims, it came to mind, and quite to my surprise was able to find it and have had several copies made and would like to see it inserted in The Era.

I have never been much surprised at anything Henry would say. He is a mere child in many ways.

POLICE COURT DELIVERY MAN CLEARED OF DRINKING CHARGE

A charge of drinking driving against Charles A. Knowles, Newmarket, on the evening of Feb. 5, when his car turned over a snow-bank on Yonge St., at one of the curves on the Holland Landing hill, was dismissed by Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe, in police court here on Tuesday.

Pleading not guilty to the charge, Mr. Knowles told his worship that he had been delivering meat and groceries throughout the countryside for 22 years and was familiar with the roads. "This is the first time I have broken the rule of the roads," he stated. "I had been hunting along the river at Holland Landing and went to the hotel in Bradford, where I had three glasses of beer. It was about 6.30 p.m. Afterwards, I went to a restaurant and had some food and then started home to Newmarket."

"I proceeded up the Holland Landing hill," the defendant continued. "At about the second curve I met a car travelling north. He was well over the centre solid white line." Mr. Knowles told his worship that this car crowded him off the road and forced him over into the guard-rail. He said that no damage was done to his truck. The defendant denied that he had been drunk or had been abusive to Chief Constable James Sloss when brought to the police station in Newmarket. According to the evidence of Edwin Wrightman, Newmarket, part-time driver of a snow plough for the department of highways, he noticed the pannelled truck after the accident. He said that the car had gone over a bank of snow which almost covered the guard-rails at the west side of the road. "Both front and rear wheels were over the guard-rails," he stated.

Cross-examined by N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown attorney, the witness said Mr. Knowles had "some odor" on his breath but he could not say what it was. He said that the defendant was alone when he arrived at the scene. He did not think him drunk.

Provincial Constable Ronald Hewatt testified that he arrived at the scene of the accident at about 9.10 p.m. and found the truck over the snow-bank. "The accused was leaning on a shovel. I asked him if he had been driving the truck and he said 'Yes,'" stated the officer. "He was wobbling on the shovel. I asked him if he had been drinking and he said that he had some beer in Bradford."

"What was his condition?" asked the crown.

"I'd say that he was drunk," said the constable. "His speech was thick and he was in a stupid condition. He was in no condition to be in charge of a car."

"This is a bad curve for accidents, is it not, Mr. Hewatt?" asked defence counsel, Charles Evans, Bradford.

"Yes, it is a bad curve," answered the police officer.

County Constable Ronald Watt told his worship that he arrived at the scene as a result of a telephone call from Constable Hewatt. He said that he smelled an odor on the defendant, but that the latter "walked and stood alright, but his reaction was slow." He said that the snow was packed but admitted that a rut in the road might have caused the truck to go into the snow-bank.

Chief Sloss testified that when the defendant was brought to the police station he "was bleary-eyed and unsteady on his feet." "He was in no condition to drive a car."

Frank Stephenson, Holland Landing, stated that Mr. Knowles came to his house after the accident in order to get a shovel to dig his car out of the snow-bank. He denied that the defendant had been drunk and told his worship that Mr. Knowles was accustomed to deliver meat to his house several times a week. I didn't notice him stagger," he said.

"I am allowing you the benefit of the doubt," the magistrate told the defendant. "I am believing your story that you were not drunk and I am dismissing the charge."

Magistrate Woodliffe fined Norman Nuttall, Toronto, $10 and costs for failing to obtain a 1941 operator's license.

His worship issued a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Marietta Green, Whitechurch township, who is charged under the Defence of Canada Regulations of being a member of an illegal organization. Mrs. Green, who last week asked for a week's adjournment of her case, did not appear this week to answer charges of being a member of the Jehovah Witnesses and of advocating the principles of that organization. Magistrate Woodliffe ordered that the warrant not be executed unless a medical officer goes along with the police officer. He also asked the crown to get in touch with Dr. C. R. Boulding, Aurora, who attended the defendant, and find out if she will be able to be present next week to answer the charge.

Robert Nottram, a son of Mrs. Green, was asked to return next week to answer similar charges.

A week's adjournment was granted Alfred Rose, Bradford. Mr. Rose is charged on four counts, the illegal possession of pike, illegal fishing, driving without license plates on his car and failing to have a 1941 operator's license.

COMFORT NOT YET TOUCHED PEOPLE TOLD

freedom, are challenged by the greatest menace of all time. We must light new beacons on the watchtowers of our freedom. By our dauntless courage and abiding trust in God, we must win victory and restore peace to the world—a lasting peace based on justice and charity.

"Since the outbreak of the war, we have exhorted you, our faithful people, to lift up your hearts in unceasing prayer for our country's weal and the success of the British cause. Now that further threats darken the world's horizon, at the approach of the Lenten period, we deem it our duty to ask you to renew your fervent supplications and to cheerfully accept whatever sufferings and sacrifices you may be called upon to endure until the final goal of liberty has been attained.

"During the past year, we have witnessed the heroic endurance of the men, women and children of Great Britain in the midst of fire and death from the clouds. The gallant resistance, the calm, serene courage of the people of London, of Birmingham, of Liverpool and of battered Coventry, amidst the wreckage of their homes and in the peril of their lives, evoke our highest admiration and our warmest praise. The daily deeds of heroism which mark even the civilian life of England bring to our lips the sacred words of Christ, 'Greater love than this no man hath, that a man lay down his life for his friends.' (John, XV, 13).

"The soldier, the sailor, the airman, the civilian who dies to save his brothers and to defend the hearths and altars of his country reaches the highest of all degrees of charity. Moreover, if war is a scourge for this earthly life of ours, a scourge whereof we cannot easily estimate the destructive force and the extent, it is also for a multitude of souls an expiation, a purification to lift us up to the highest love of country and to perfect Christian unselfishness.

"In our own beloved Canada, we have been spared the outbreaks of horror, of outrage and of sacrilege, the wanton destruction of life and property and the constant enervating fear of danger and death to our loved ones which have fallen upon the brave people of the motherland. Truth to tell, the war has hardly affected our comfortable lives.

We must now awaken to the realization that our nation rightly demands the spirit of sacrifice from each and every one of us. Canada needs us all—every man, woman and child to strengthen her, to stand faithfully by her, to make all necessary sacrifices gladly, to lift up our hands and hearts in prayer for her until her hour of trial has passed and her hour of glorious triumph shall arise.

"Let us, then, willingly co-operate with the civic authorities of our land and gird ourselves with the threefold spirit of detachment, self-denial and of courage in whatever sacrifices may be necessary. Let us, by our spiritual co-operation with the ideals of the church, sustain the hearts of our sons and brothers overseas and so strengthen the nation's fibre that when the welter of war is over we will have acquired that sturdiness of character, that spirit of self-command and self-discipline so essential to true democratic life. It is the Christian law: it is the stirring challenge of Lent: 'And whosoever doth not carry his cross and come after Me cannot be my disciple.' (Luke XIV, 27).

"Finally we, your spiritual shepherds and fathers in God, exhort you with all the fervor of our souls to pray without ceasing for our country's social welfare and for peace with victory according to the holy will of God. Our hearts have been consoled by the voice of his royal majesty, our Christian King, George VI, calling upon his faithful subjects throughout the empire to kneel before the God of nations and humbly acknowledging our defects and our sins, implore the aid of his almighty power.

"Prayer moves the hand which guides the destinies of nations as of individuals. In the sacred writings as well as in the long history of Christian civilization, we have examples of the unfailing power of prayer. Humble, persevering prayer ascending to the throne of the Most High, will pierce the clouds and bring down the dew of God's mercy upon us and upon our cause. In the words of the royal psalmist 'Some place their trust in chariots, others in steeds. But we, in the name of the Lord, our God' (Ps. XIX, 8), 'Let God arise and let his enemies be scattered and let them that hate Him flee from his face' (Ps. LXVII, 1).

"The valiant warrior, Judas Maccabeus, knew the power of prayer when he said: 'Success in war is not in the multitude of the army but strength comes from heaven. They come against us with an insolent multitude and with pride to destroy us. But we will fight for our lives and our laws. And the Lord Himself will overthrow them before his face: but as for us, fear them not' (1 Mac. III, 19-22).

"Let us pray ourselves. Let us influence others to join in our supplications. We implore you, in God's name, to cast yourselves upon his mercy. Use your influence with those around you—in your homes, your households, your friendships. If, during the season of Lent, our Canadian people would sincerely forsake injustice, intemperance, lust and worldliness and turn humbly and perseveringly to implore the help and mercy of Christ, He would calm the surging waves of tyranny and slavery and give the divine command, 'Peace be still.' God, and God alone, is the hope of society. In his divine healing we will find a sure cure for the moral and economic ills which lie so heavily upon the world. Let us put our trust in Him and we will not be confounded.

"In order that all the faithful of Ontario—one in heart and mind—may unite in the offering of the same divine sacrifice, in the liturgical prayers of the church and in the same faith and hope and love, we ordain as follows:

"(1) That the first Sunday of Lent be consecrated in all our parishes as a day of intercession for peace with victory.

"(2) That on the same first Sunday of Lent in every church and chapel throughout the civil province of Ontario, a solemn mass be offered and that the faithful be exhorted to receive holy communion for this intention.

"(3) That after mass, wherever possible, the blessed sacrament be exposed for public adoration until the afternoon or evening when the faithful shall be invited to close the day by spending a holy hour in meditation and prayer under the guidance of the parish clergy.

tion and prayer under the guidance of the parish clergy.

"As we now humbly implore God's help in our fight for liberty and justice and particularly for all who are oppressed by tyranny and the spirit of godlessness, so may we soon ring out a glorious 'Te Deum' of victory, the anthem which Canada in union with all nations which believe in God's overruling providence will raise to the 'King of Kings and the Lord of Lords.'

PUPILS LEARNING PUBLIC SPEAKING NOW MAY BE IN PARLIAMENT LATER, PRINCIPAL SAYS

Members and friends of the local branch of the Home and School Association spent a very worthwhile evening on Tuesday when they met with a number of the junior pupils of the public schools and shared with them a delightful evening.

Group singing, instrumental solos by Miss Betty MacInnis and vocal numbers by Miss Jean Robertson, accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Margaret Webb, were very much enjoyed by those gathered together.

The contest in public speaking was the program feature.

The judges were Mrs. F. Hodge, Mrs. W. O. Noble and Mrs. C. E. Cunningham.

The first four grades in each of the three public schools were represented by two speakers from each room, 24 entries in all.

The materials used were most interesting and covered many topics, some being "My Dog," Robert Louis Stevenson, Air Raids on London, Whales, My First Trip to the Canadian National Exhibition, Chopin, Rice Production, A Trip to Riverdale Zoo, How Hans Saved Holland and King Robert Bruce of Scotland.

Children from six to nine years of age took part. They showed practically no sign of nervousness or self-consciousness and were remarkably well prepared to present and handle their chosen topic.

All contestants who were not awarded first place in the grade represented received a 25-cent war savings stamp. Those winning the honor of first place were each presented with 50 cents in war savings stamps.

The following is the list of entries for each grade. First mentioned in each group won first place.

Grade I: Mary Jane Hope, Donald Budd, Craig Cribbar, Nelson Long, Ruth LeDrew and Burton Keffer.

Grade II: Billy Hillyard, Patsy Dunn, Lorne Garrett, Pauline Bovair, Melfort McCaffrey and Allan Jackson.

Grade III: Dorothy Harrison, Joyce Sharpe, Rona Inglis, Barbara Gilroy, Marilyn Wrightman and George Case.

Grade IV: Wendell Gilbert, Gloria Goodman, Carl Tibbett, Mary Ellen MacInnis, Frances McComb and Paul Morton.

Following the judges' findings H. A. Jackson, principal, awarded the prizes, speaking words of encouragement and congratulation to the boys and girls.

Turning to the adults, Mr. Jackson explained the value of competition in public speaking, saying that it develops self-expression, self-confidence and self-expression, as well as personality.

"Each student learns that if his subject is not clearly understood and thoroughly prepared he is not permitted to have the honor of representing his class at the oratorical contest," he said.

"When a child is familiar with the subject under discussion there is little room for stage fright, nervousness or embarrassment. He can deliver a logical, well-planned, convincing address, which has meat for thought and is a joy to hear."

"Public speaking is a big step in the right direction in preparing the rising generation to fit itself for service in the years to come."

"Many of these juniors in the local public schools who do not shrink at taking their part in public today will be the men and women of tomorrow into whose capable hands will fall a share of the responsibilities of government."

"It may be that in our own public schools today we may

MURIEL MARRITT WED IN TORONTO

The marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Carlton St., Toronto, at noon on Saturday, of Muriel S. Marritt, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Marritt, formerly of Keswick, to Herbert William Nugent, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Nugent, England.

A reception was held at 443 Jarvis St., where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of black crepe and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Cyril Dunford received with her.

About 250 attended the reception, after which, amid showers of confetti, the happy couple left for Keswick. For travelling the bride wore a smart grey tweed coat with blue accessories. On their return they will reside on Carlton St., Toronto.

NOVELTY DANCES FEATURE THIRD RED CROSS DANCE

A realistic black-out, with sirens, searchlights and bomb sound effects, was one of the features at the Red Cross dance held last Friday in the high school auditorium. Another feature was the girl trumpet and vocalist. A novelty dance was the "card" dance, when a pack of cards were strewn on the floor for the dancers to pick up, and the holder of the card corresponding to the card drawn from another deck took the prize. Max Boag and his orchestra supplied the music. A good crowd attended, and about $100 was realized for Red Cross work.

CONTRIBUTED BY J. A. HARRISON, D.C.

Canada is now concluding a campaign in which every man, woman and child has been asked to stop buying luxuries and put the money thus saved into war savings certificates. In this there are two objectives in view: first, to provide for a portion of our war expenses and secondly and perhaps of greater importance to curtail the use of labor and machinery for non-war purposes. It is hoped to raise $120,000,000 a year in this way.

A voluntary campaign of this kind was considered more desirable than extra taxation, but after all in many instances it will be very ineffective as a method of lessening the use of luxuries, as some people will still buy luxuries and forgo necessities instead of vice versa. Canada spent last year on liquor over $170,000,000, which is more in itself than the whole war savings campaign will raise after leaving out the small percentage for medicinal and allied uses. Even if we are very 'tolerant' and ignore the evil results of this use of alcohol in premature deaths, broken homes, accidents and a general lowering in the moral tone of the people, surely every honest man must agree that at best its use for beverage purposes is a luxury, the depriving of which can in no manner injure anyone but may conceivably do considerable good.

I will be frank in stating that I am not in agreement with the principle of prohibition of the liquor traffic in peace-time, as I think less radical steps sincerely and intelligently applied will bring better results, as they have in England, where the prison population was continually decreasing before the war, but any argument for personal liberty and against prohibition does not apply now during the war.

If we have the right to tell young men you must leave your homes and employment and submit yourself to military training and possibly later compulsory service abroad, surely no intelligent man can see injustice in merely telling the same young men and others that they cannot use alcoholic beverages when this step will do more to win the war than the whole war savings campaign. If the government is not prepared or has not the courage to take this step or perhaps doubts its wisdom or necessity, it could, if it wanted, do many things to diminish liquor consumption instead of giving people the impression that it wants greater consumption in order to obtain greater revenue.

One suggestion along this line which was very effective in England during the last war was the prohibition of treating, thus compelling every man to pay for his own drink. Shortening of hours of sale, decreasing the number of stores and educational advertising tending to diminish sales instead of increasing them, are only a few of other methods that are open.

People will doubt either the intelligence or the sincerity of our governments when they say they are doing all they know how to win the war, if action is not taken soon. A politician keeps his ear to the ground to find out what the people want and then advocates it in order to get elected, while a statesman sees clearly what needs to be done and then goes ahead and does it, at the same time trying to convince people of its necessity. Canada desperately needs more statesmen right now.

King Wins Group, Game Ends In "Free-for-all"

The King-Schomberg hockey sextet annexed the local O.R.H.A. group, to move into the playdowns, as they walloped Thornton 9-2 in the Simcoe county hamlet last Thursday.

King had a three-goal lead from the first game and from the outset the homesters carried the game to the York county boys to try and draw on equal terms. In the first period Thornton scored twice, but from then on the orange and green took over and by scoring four goals in the second period and five in the third annexed their second straight group title 14-4 on the round.

Graham with three, Lloyd and Follitt with two, and Shropshire and Hollingshead with one each, were the King goal-getters.

Last time at Thornton a bloody battle ensued and this game was no exception, with Shorty Graham and Quinlan of the Thornton team bringing matters to a head as they started swinging and practically all the players and some spectators joined in with a will. League officials and the referee quelled the near riot with the assistance of the cooler heads on both sides.

Richmond Hill have entered junior and intermediate teams in the T.H.L. King Clancy series, and Mabley, Stephens and Beresford are doing a bit of puckchasing still, after their work here. Incidentally, of these three, only Bruce Stephens is eligible for junior.

He should be next season, and he should be a bit better, after his first year in junior company. He did play a bit last year but says, "that didn't count."

DOWN THE CENTRE

Ross Waddell, who gallantly performed in the nets for the local juniors this season, and turned in a series of sensational efforts, has bobbed up in the sweater of Barrie Colts, and will add the Simcoe county boys in their quest for junior B honors. Charlie Spearman, the regular Barrie goalie, recently underwent an operation and is out for the season, and with Gordon Roach, last year's understudy for Consaul in the air force, Charlie Christie's boys were in a bad way. Secretary Bill Hewitt of the O.H.A. and the local club came to the rescue and Waddell will finish the season with the Barrie club.

The Colts, incidentally, will find Waddell an improvement on Spearman. We saw the Penetang boy in action on three occasions and didn't think he lived up to advance notice, altho', to be fair, he may have been playing while a sick boy. The release covers only this season and local officials are hoping that Ross, who has two more years in junior, will be back here next season. Oshawa and Toronto. Mariboros of the A series are said to be casting covetous glances at the diminutive custodian, and we don't blame them. Meanwhile, Barrie and Waddell will be in the good wishes of local sportsmen, as the O.H.A. grinds on.

Mehalg, Stan. Preston, Jack Harper (goal), Bruce "The" Harper and Austin Baker—in other words, about the whole team. Coburn, we think, too, passes on, but we're not certain about him.

That's just about the biggest dispersing of group winners. Markham's goal total for the season is a mark for others to shoot at in coming years. Their average for the season is over eight per game, while they have yet to be blanked. Two goals in one is the lowest they have been held to, while 15 against Salton was tops.

Crying towels? Did I hear a mention about them? Well, at least Aurora did carry the play-off series to three games and weren't blanked by Jack Harper. Frankly, I don't think anyone needed them very much for it was fairly well apparent from half-way through the schedule that Ernie Lawrie's boys were about to repeat and would not be headed. Naturally, we all lived in hopes for the best, but hopes without the real stuff on the ice isn't quite good enough. The Redmen, despite the addition of Carr, Myers and Dickson, weren't much better than they were last year. The Aurora team was, of course, but a shadow of the teams that have been in other years.

Consolation may be sought in the outlook that the two old rivals from the centre of the county have for next year, as both teams have most of the boys back, providing they are not snared by somebody else. Aurora lose only Mabley, Beresford, Pearce and Stewart, and on their showing this year at least Mabley will be the one most missed. The other boys tried hard, but Pearce, especially, just couldn't get going. Harry was the big disappointment on the Aurora team! By way of keeping his hand in Pearce is playing hockey now in the T. H. L. commercial series for the firm where he is now employed and is a co-mate of his buddy, Grant Cook.

Expect To Go Over Top In War Savings Pledge Drive

Public School Children Buy Over $730 In War Savings Stamps Since Last October

"Aurora will definitely reach its objective and will likely go over the top," W. J. Sisman, regional war savings chairman, told The Era on Wednesday.

"We are well pleased with results and I cannot but praise the canvassers for their work and the public for its response. B. E. Hambley, the chairman, has done a fine job."

The objective set for Aurora was 600 pledges and on Saturday the thermometer outside of campaign headquarters on Yonge St.

registered 500 pledges. Since then the canvassers have been exceedingly busy. Owing to the illness of the energetic chairman, B. E. Hambley, final figures to date were not available at press time.

From Aurora public school came news of a real achievement during February. It was announced by Principal John G. McDonald that no less than $225.75 in stamps had been purchased by the school children, making a total in all of $739.75 purchased since last October.

Senior Cagers Battle Pickering In Tie Game

Aurora high school cagers remain unbeaten but nearly had their winning streak rudely interrupted at Pickering College last Thursday.

Aurora juniors had no difficulty in taking their third straight win in the preliminary battle, 20-14. Ron Kyle again came through with a feature performance for eight points, while Captain "Ducky" Davis had his sights levelled to snipe six points. Other baskets went one each to Bill Gilkes, Earl Rose and Stephenson.

The senior game saw two of the five ironmen, Howard Follitt and Pete Hughey, absent, and as junior players may play one game in senior company, Bill Thompson and Doug Nisbet were drafted for one game.

Pickering, with reinforcements on hand, led 8-6 at the quarter. Aurora came back to leave the score 10-10 at half-time. At the three-quarter point it was 19-15 for the local boys, but with Fred Pugsley banished for four personal fouls, the Pickering boys found the going easier and the Aurora boys were lucky to hold them to a 21-21 game. Blondie Rawlings and Bob Burton each got six points for the locals, but Burton, a guard, moved to the forward line, and while he added to the point total, he lapsed defensively. Bill Thompson scored five points, while Harvey Fingold and Fred Pugsley each obtained a basket.

Describes English City Smashed By Blitzkrieg

The following interesting letter from England, telling of the hardships being bravely endured, was recently received by a Newmarket citizen from Mrs. Frank Gibbs, a former Toronto woman who sometimes visited Newmarket.

Christ Church Rectory, Salford, England.

First let me thank you ever so much for the two bundles of papers and magazines you sent, and also for the lovely church calendar. I can't tell you how much we have enjoyed them, as the Canadian papers contain so much more than ours and have some very wonderful pictures and stories, and articles well worth reading. The rector is reading them while I write this. It is Sunday evening, just after the regular service, and we have a few minutes to ourselves (a rare occurrence, for we are very busy and are so often interrupted by sirens.) The pictures of Canada in the calendar made me quite homesick.

We hope you had a very happy Christmas—we didn't get hardly any mail off for I had been busy for weeks preparing our old rectory to house 75 homeless, and also arranging a Christmas party at the barracks (where the rector is the chaplain) for 500 children.

Then, on the Sunday before Christmas, while we were in church for evensong, the "blitz" started. The whole building rocked with the force of the explosions around us and the windows were shattered. We carried on although at one time I thought the rector would be blown off the reading desk. After the service we saw fires everywhere; it was as light as day; one incendiary had dropped on our gasometer and was making a huge blaze. One of the workmen climbed up and put it out. We had to go to shelters except the rector—he was out all the time risking his life, saving people buried under the wreckage of their homes, putting out incendiaries, comforting the people, etc.

Again the following night we had the same over again, and the terrible results: hundreds dead and injured, about 15,000 rendered homeless, some temporary for about a week or ten days due to time bombs; others, their homes and possessions all gone with the exception of what they stood up in! Salford and Manchester are sad sights; the shopping district (like Yonge St., Toronto) is absolutely gutted; shops, music halls, factories, workshops, industries of all kinds, our beautiful cathedral, churches, schools, hospitals are all destroyed or badly damaged. Trams are unable to run, roads are blocked with debris. For some days we had no gas, electric or water. Almost every home and shop is without windows, and glass is impossible to get. The people are facing hardships through rain and cold. The city is now boarding up the windows with something like beaver board but that means no daylight can enter.

We are thankful to God that He spared our home. Our old rectory was hit and we were not able to use it for the homeless, so we had 28 of them here and in the parish room next door. I have cooked and looked after them for four weeks, and besides we had 50 at our only remaining school. Of the other two schools, one is completely gone, the other unfit, as is also our mission church. Our work was made more difficult without gas or electric, but fortunately I had stored some water and my kitchen range is splendid.

At Christmas we had our services as usual and would not disappoint the children, so had their party in the afternoon. There was a 650-pound bomb 50 yards from here for two weeks, but we carried on and they got it away without exploding. Well, we have settled down to normal again and it is amazing how the people are carrying on "business as usual" amidst the ruins, and the English wit is still strong. Outside the ruined business places you will read posters with all kinds of humorous sayings. I must stop now as I have to prepare for confirmation class, mothers' meeting, etc., so must get busy.

THE NEW 1941 PONTIAC

All styled in the torpedo manner, Pontiac for 1941 offers three series of cars — the Fleetleader, the Fleetleader Special and the DeLuxe Six. The new models are graceful and arresting in appearance, longer in wheelbase and designed to provide outstanding all-round performance. Shown above is the striking new low-priced Fleetleader 4-door sedan.

sealed or built-in running boards which are visible only when the doors are open.

New triumphs on the part of designers and engineers are reflected in the graceful aerodynamic lines of the 1941 McLaughlin-Buick cars, offered in four new series.

Outstanding among a hundred major and minor features are compound carburetion and the advanced and distinctive restyling of bodies. The massive new radiator grilles are unbroken by painted lines, while the new fully chromed centre strip imparts a one-piece appearance to the whole front end, near the top of which is the attractive McLaughlin-Buick crest.

Compound carburetion involves the use of two dual carburetors per engine with a resulting step-up in horsepower, yet a marked improvement in fuel economy. Used in combination with the valve-in-head straight-eight engines, which are of "fireball" design, the result is reported to be a marked improvement in performance—particularly in the lower speeds.

The Fleetleader and the Fleetleader Special are offered on a 116-inch wheelbase. Then comes the DeLuxe Six on a 119-inch wheelbase.

The new models feature con-

HOLT
EUCHRE, CROQUINOLE
NET B.W.V.F. $15.50

A successful progressive euchre and croquinole party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walker McFarland, last Tuesday evening in aid of the British war victims' fund. Much credit is due Mrs. Alan Hopkins, Mrs. Ada Roling and Mrs. Walker McFarland, who sponsored this party, also the neighbors and friends who turned out so splendidly in support of such a worthy enterprise.

About 60 participated in the games, resulting in prizes being won by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lepard for euchre, and Mrs. Ralph Cripples for croquinole. After refreshments were served, a very pleasant evening was brought to a close with the singing of the national anthem. As a result of their effort, these ladies were able to forward the sum of $15.50 to the fund.

The Holt girls' club also donated $5 to the fund.

About 21 attended a family gathering held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Rutledge last Thursday.

A number from Holt attended the concert held in the hall at Mount Albert on Friday evening in aid of the British war victims' fund.

Mrs. John Hogg's daughters surprised her with a very delightful supper party on the occasion of her birthday one evening last week.

Miss Vera Babcock of Newmarket spent the weekend with friends at Holt.

Miss Mina Coates of Newmarket spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coates.

ADAMS

So we say farewell to the hockey season with the sinking of the Redmen on the Markham ice last Monday night and we admit there were plenty of towels available Tuesday morning in this old burg.

The Markham Aces are a real club, despite the fact the reds beat them twice this season, and should come really close to the top rung of the series before the final bell of the season is rung.

Newmarket's biggest let-down was their apparent inability to pass the rubber and to cover up in front of their own twine where the Markham outfit did most of their real damage.

Thus the Redmen are again relegated to the side-lines, along with the rest of the teams in this group, and many another loop, although they are all just waiting for the bugle to call for the O.H.A. derby next year, when they hope to give a better account of themselves.

Although the reds only tallied three goals in the game at Markham Monday night, they deserved at least twice that many, as they missed open nets galore in the second period, particularly when they had Harper on the run.

The defence in the second game carried most of the attack burden, with the forwards not clicking at all and as passing was almost impossible on the Markham surface the blue-line leads had to come to the fore and lead the attack.

Now that our locals are through for the season I'm sure the fans will all wish the Aces every success in their quest for a title, as this column does, as I still think this group will produce the "C" champs this year. So more power to the Aces.

Some of the fans who like their hockey rough and ready are missing a real treat when they fail to attend the merk loop games in the next week or two, since the play-offs are in the offing.

The Town torpedoed the O.S.M. Tuesday in the first of the semi-finals as they nosed the furniture lads out 6-5 in as hard a fought tussle as one might see anywhere. Two quick markers in the last two minutes spelled defeat to the green clan, as they had held the towners fairly even till the last spasm.

With all the teams in fighting for the silverware the finals should be red hot. There are generally quite a few old scores the boys like to settle before the season ends.

Along the grapevine . . . Our Redmen will not be hit very hard by the age rule for next season. I believe about three of the boys will have to move up to the older class . . . I wonder how many of the other squads will be hit harder . . . The Sutton boys, I believe, will be intact for next season and with a little more coaching under their belts they will make it hot for any other outfit in the loop . . . Jimmy Lowe, ex-Aurora ice and softball star, had the misfortune to fracture his ankle against Etobicoke the other night and will sit on the side-lines for the balance of the year . . . It sure is a tough break for Lowe, as he is the captain of the Brantford Lions and right in the thick of the "B" series play-offs . . . Some of the Redmen, we understand, will finish the season in the Uxbridge league with the Ballantrae squad . . . So we fold for this week amidst words of solace . . . Well, there always is another year . . .

Mrs. Galbraith, who has been at her son's home in Aurora for the past week, returned home on Monday.

The north group of the W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. A. Armstrong on Wednesday of last week and made three custom quilts for members. There was a lovely dinner, which Mrs. Armstrong gave, with a little help from some of the members, which realized $11 for the group, for which they are very thankful.

F. Sgt. J. W. B. Rynard has been transferred to MacDonald, Man.

Mrs. Wm. Rynard had a quilting on Tuesday for the east group of the W.M.S.

A euchre and games will be held on Thursday, Feb. 27, in the hall, the proceeds of which will be for war work.

Friday afternoon of this week will be the world day of prayer. Both auxiliaries will meet in the Presbyterian church here.

Newmarket Juniors are through for another season and through by reason of the same old headache — Markham. We hope it isn't long before the Bangays can vote and maybe then something can be done about the situation. Once a hockey player starts voting he is no longer a junior or is not supposed to be.

Bob Bangay, elder of the two brothers, scored five goals in the two-game series, while the entire Newmarket team got three goals. Of the local goals, Dickson got two and Cliff Gunn one. Markham won both games in a convincing manner.

Personally, I think the juniors did very well this season considering the youth and comparative inexperience of some of their members. Thought that if Newmarket did win the championship they would have to get the breaks because Markham showed they knew their way as far as hockey was concerned. On fast ice the locals couldn't keep up with the speedy and fast-shifting Markham team. Bill Jelley seemed to be the only one who could keep Bob Bangay in check and the Markham manager was astute enough to shift his lines so that Jelley and Bangay didn't oppose each other.

Some things stand out on looking back over the season. The usually brilliant net-minding of Frankie Carr, the quick-witted work of Dickson, the leadership of Gordon Bone, the paralyzing body-checks of Cliff Gunn, the never-failing energy of Tommy Myers, the doggedness of Howard Hamilton, the goal-getting ability of Bill Jelley.

Jack Gibbon, when on the ice, seemed to be the equal of any other man. His rushing and spectacular style of play stamped him as a real hockey player. MacInnis and Broughton showed improvement every time on the ice. Broughton was getting over his habit of skating a lot and doing little. He was mucking in during the last few games. Jack Luck was out most of the season with a broken bone and had little chance to get into stride.

It's probably much too early to think about the set-up for next year. However, I do hope that Markham is in it again so that the Redmen can give them the pasting of their lives. This is an earnest hope, not a cry of vengeance. Sutton was a very weak aggregation and, unless they are much improved next season, the league should try to make the fight more interesting by addition of another and stronger team.

Coach Charlie Rowntree had the confidence of his team during the season and coached them fairly well. At times it seemed he could have used better strategy in his attack and defense tactics but that is only the opinion of this writer.

Charlie didn't employ the element of surprise often, but that may be a hard element to employ in hockey. General Wavell has shown us the results one can get by doing the unexpected. It probably works the same way in hockey. However, Charlie has done a progressively better job with his team each year and next season should see at least the local group championship come to us.

Memories of days gone by will come to the minds of local people when they visit the ice carnivals in the rink tomorrow night. The arena will be packed to its limit and even the "standing room only" signs should disappear. It's been a long time since the glorious days when hockey-mad citizens saw the Newmarket Redmen rampage along the path to dominion-wide fame. The rink roared to its rafters then and it should do so again on Friday.

The carnival menu has everything from "soup to nuts" printed on it and the fans are going to get thrills, chills, maybe spills, beauty, laughter and song. And as a result of it, people of London will get something to eat, which, after all, makes the whole event really worth-while.

Mount Pleasant

Snow . . . if anyone wishes to see some, come to Mount Pleasant corners. Those who attended church on Sunday had difficulty in returning home, as the roads had filled in greatly in a few hours.

Pte. Wesley Shier and his wife spent the weekend with Mrs. Shier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins.

Miss Jean Hopkins returned to the city on Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Shier.

Mrs. John Hopkins is spending this week at Keswick with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Sedore.

Quite a number from here attended Norman Sedore's sale.

Mrs. Jack Bosworth is not enjoying very good health.

Miss Velma Bosworth is visiting friends in Sutton this week. Mrs. Ewart Mainprize and daughter, Margaret, of Belhaven, attended little Miss Florence Mainprize's birthday party last Friday.

The Young People's meeting at Mrs. Perry Brown's home last Friday evening was well attended and all report a good time.

Mrs. Wm. Moulis' quilting party had to be postponed last Friday owing to bad roads.
Mrs. May Stiles visited Mr. and Mrs. Noble Wright at Aurora on Sunday.

ROCHE'S POINT
Church Group Sees
Movies of War Effort

Christ church parish hall was packed to the doors on Friday evening, when, through the kindness of J. Bruce Mackinnon, another happy and very successful social was held.

The program consisted of talks, with motion picture films. "On Guard for Thee" was a splendid film in three parts, showing Canada's war effort. Other films shown were events leading up to the destruction of the German battleship, Graf Spee, the royal tour and a trip through the city of Edinburgh, Scotland.

At the close of the pictures, J. Sutcliffe and R. Upton thanked both Mr. Mackinnon and Rev. R. R. Bonis of West Hill (the latter operated the machine for the evening) for the excellent and instructive films that had been shown. A sing-song, with Mrs. F. Sherman at the piano, completed a full evening's entertainment. The incumbent, Rev. A. J. Forte, acted as chairman.

Recent visitors to the Christ church rectory were Rev. R. R. Bonis, rector of St. Margaret's church, West Hill, and Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McTavish of Toronto.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Arthur Greer, wife of Rev. Arthur Greer, pastor of Newmarket Christian church.

Members of both churches will take part and it is urged that all who can will attend this important meeting.

The regular meeting of the United Church Women's Association will be held in the Sunday-school room on Thursday, Mar. 6. Supper will be served at 5.30 p.m. Convenors are Mrs. W. Davidson, Mrs. L. B. Pollock and Mrs. P. W. Mahoney.

A good program is being prepared, part of which will be put on by the music pupils of Miss Muriel Willoughby.

GEORGINA TOWNSHIP
Pupils Will Canvass
For War Victims' Fund

A resolution was passed that the schools of the township of Georgina set aside a Saturday in the near future for collecting for the British war victims' fund and that the clerk be instructed to notify the teachers to this effect, at the meeting of Georgina township council, at Pefferlaw, on Monday, Feb. 10.

In the absence of the reeve Councillor Taylor took the chair. The collectors' time for returning the roll was extended until the next regular meeting of the council.

Frank Arnold was appointed school attendance officer and weed inspector for 1941.

Archie Stadwick was paid $75 in full settlement of his claim against the municipality, owing to the fact that he had not been given a month's notice in dispensing with his services as police officer.

R. H. Corner was appointed relief officer for the township of Georgina for the year 1941. Les. Taylor having refused the duties of this office.

An expenditure voucher for the township roads, totalling $72.20, was accepted.

Accounts passed included: North York registry office, searching titles, $8.55; North York registry office, reg. tax sale lands, $4.05; dog tags, $11.65; Village of Sutton, relief, $2.18; R. C. Riddell, trip to Weston, $5; York county, hospitalization, $22.12; Mrs. R. E. Weir, balance on compensation ins., $24.20; Johnston Gen. Store, relief account, $16.

A by-law appointing pound-keepers and fence-viewers was passed.

The meeting then adjourned for one week to meet on Feb. 17 at 1.45 p.m.

The adjourned meeting took place at Pefferlaw on Monday, Feb. 17. Members were all present, except Councillor Graham. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The by-law appointing Clond Willis as road superintendent was repealed, the yeas and nays being demanded. The vote was as follows: yeas, Councillors J. C. Taylor and C. F. Anderson; nays, Councillor Herb. Crossberry and Reeve Cockburn.

Wm. Lalimer was appointed fence-viewer in lieu of John Lalimer.

As the cheque issued for and appropriated for property bought in 1938 from Thos. Comer for the county road was not accepted, it was decided that the funds appropriated for this purpose be returned to the general funds of the township until such time as settlement is made with Mr. Comer.

A plan sub-dividing part of lot 5, con. 8, of the township of Georgina, was submitted to the council for approval by Wm.

Mossington. The council moved that in their opinion there should be an additional 16 feet of road allowance allowed on the plan submitted. The plan was returned for this adjustment.

An account for damage done to J. L. Crozier's car on the Lake shore road, also a summons to appear in court on April 8 was received. The council moved that the account and summons from Mr. Crozier be forwarded to the firm which carries the insurance on the township roads, and that Mr. Crozier be notified to this effect.

A MECHANIZED ARMY SERVING YOU
Mechanized and motorized units—these make up the modern army. You have often noticed Bell line crews with their trucks along the highway. Those too are mechanized, motorized units, each with a highly skilled crew; each completely equipped with tools, power, material.
In an emergency they can be mobilized—quietly, quickly, efficiently—to repair the havoc wrought by storm, fire, or flood. The equipment they carry—standardized apparatus of many kinds—makes possible the speedy restoration of vital services.
Preventive maintenance, preparedness, experience, and skill—these all serve to ensure that your message will get through with minimum delay in any emergency—a vital contribution to the country's war effort.

Mount Albert Near Air-Raid Record At B.W.V.F. Concert

The concert in the hall on Friday night under the auspices of the United church, for the British war victims' fund, was everything that could be desired. There was a splendid crowd. The roads were anything but good, but people came just the same, until they were standing around without seats. But they were well rewarded for coming out. Those taking part included Miss Borinsky of Stouffville, elocutionist, and the blind musician, Mr. Meteham, and his daughter, who plays, sings and dances, who came from Sutton. Other numbers were given by five of the junior boys' band from Stouffville, Harvey Evans, elocutionist, Queensville, Guy Rutledge, Sharon, and Roy Stewart, who sang duets, Mrs. Donald Stiver, soloist, and Jack Walker, reader. George Price as chairman was the right man in the right place and a very appreciative audience enjoyed every number on the program. At the close of the evening Jim Hunter of radio fame arrived and gave a little talk with lights out. The audience listened to a record made on the streets of London during an air raid about four weeks ago, which sent chills through the audience as they thought of the horror of it. It made everyone think they must do their best to help win the war. The fund, which was then $80, went to $102 at the close of the concert.

Much of the credit was due Ed. Watts for his work in putting on this concert and many thanks went to all who came free of charge to do their part and made it an evening long to be remembered.

Mount Albert J. H. Crowle Dies At 80, Was Farmer In Scott

After a short illness in the Toronto General hospital, John H. Crowle passed away very suddenly on Sunday evening in his 81st year.

He was born in Brock township, the son of William and Eliza Crowle, and was a successful farmer in Scott township until he retired about 20 years ago, when he moved to Markham, where his first wife, Elizabeth Prout, passed away. He then came to Mount Albert to live and some years later married Mrs. Agnes Hamilton, who survives him. He is also survived by his son, Aylmer, who resides on the old homestead in Scott, and one daughter, Mrs. Arnold (Meda) of Radcliff, Sask., one brother, Albert, at Oshawa, and two sisters, Mrs. Corbett of Orillia, and Mrs. Corbett of Gravenhurst.

Mr. Crowle was a faithful worker in the former Methodist church and later the United church, having been a member of the choir at Mount Albert since he came here until a few months ago. The Mount Albert residents have lost a real friend and neighbor, a lover of little children, who will all miss him, one who has left behind an example of a life well spent and whose memory will always live in the hearts of those left behind.

The funeral service will be held at the home on Friday by Rev. R. V. Wilson, with interment in Union cemetery, Oshawa.

Queen's York Scouts Work As Ski Patrols

Last Sunday morning at 9:30 hrs. (9:30) two sections of Queen's York Rangers, under Lieut. K. M. R. Stiver, scouted the section on skis, known as the Newmarket ski club trails. The remainder of the Queen's York battalion were defending Newmarket from the enemy who were advancing from the west.

Company headquarters were formed at the ski club hut under Lieut. Stiver and Sgt. J. C. Hamilton. The men were given their orders, shown by the map the country they had to scout, and the ski patrols were off. It was a grand sight to see the uniformed men strike out to do their respective jobs and not a word spoken, just a farewell wave.

Almost an hour had passed before the first scout brought back the word that the enemy were seen heading east supported by aircraft and light tanks near the Jefferson farm. Some of the men found the deep snow a little difficult in spots. The messages were beginning to come in thick and fast as the anti-aircraft guns blazed away at the enemy machines. Lieut. Stiver had moved company headquarters up nearer his men and was in constant touch with them all the time.

As No. 1 section under Cpl. G. Hewson were scouting the cedars west of Birdseye Centre the enemy was once again sighted. The section spread out and captured the enemy without a shot being fired. As the enemy prisoner was being taken to company headquarters, word was flashed through that No. 2 section, under Cpl. L. Rose, had captured their enemy with the loss of one ski pole. Scouts were sent with messages to recall both sections to the rear company headquarters. Here word was sent to the battalion guarding Newmarket that the enemy were approaching and some prisoners had been taken.

Back at headquarters hot coffee and hot-dogs were ready for the patrol. Of course, no smoking was allowed on the patrol, so the men had a well-earned smoke.

It was recommended by the sergeant that Cpl. D. Bosworth and Pte. L. Gilkes be given some recognition for their bravery in capturing the enemy.

Queen's York Scouts Work As Ski Patrols

Last Sunday morning at 9:30 hrs. (9:30) two sections of Queen's York Rangers, under Lieut. K. M. R. Stiver, scouted the section on skis, known as the Newmarket ski club trails. The remainder of the Queen's York battalion were defending Newmarket from the enemy who were advancing from the west.

Company headquarters were formed at the ski club hut under Lieut. Stiver and Sgt. J. C. Hamilton. The men were given their orders, shown by the map the country they had to scout, and the ski patrols were off. It was a grand sight to see the uniformed men strike out to do their respective jobs and not a word spoken, just a farewell wave.

Almost an hour had passed before the first scout brought back the word that the enemy were seen heading east supported by aircraft and light tanks near the Jefferson farm. Some of the men found the deep snow a little difficult in spots. The messages were beginning to come in thick and fast as the anti-aircraft guns blazed away at the enemy machines. Lieut. Stiver had moved company headquarters up nearer his men and was in constant touch with them all the time.

As No. 1 section under Cpl. G. Hewson were scouting the cedars west of Birdseye Centre the enemy was once again sighted. The section spread out and captured the enemy without a shot being fired. As the enemy prisoner was being taken to company headquarters, word was flashed through that No. 2 section, under Cpl. L. Rose, had captured their enemy with the loss of one ski pole. Scouts were sent with messages to recall both sections to the rear company headquarters. Here word was sent to the battalion guarding Newmarket that the enemy were approaching and some prisoners had been taken.

Back at headquarters hot coffee and hot-dogs were ready for the patrol. Of course, no smoking was allowed on the patrol, so the men had a well-earned smoke.

It was recommended by the sergeant that Cpl. D. Bosworth and Pte. L. Gilkes be given some recognition for their bravery in capturing the enemy.

Those taking part were Lieut. K. M. R. Stiver, Sgt. Hamilton,

HITLER BANS LIQUOR

alcohol as a prescribed medicine is not imbibing nor indulging. But this claim of using spirituous liquors as a medicine is so frequently an excuse by people of a guilty conscience and with an appetite for the stuff that one is inclined to hear it with suspicion.

Certain medical authorities tell us that liquor is not necessary in the great majority of cases, although there are some exceptions. Many doctors, particularly Christian men, tell us that liquor, taken even as a medicine, is apt to do more harm than good, for although it may help for the time being, it creates within the body a further need for itself and also produces an appetite for it. This is often the vicious circle that leads to intemperance, so unless its use is unavoidable, we suggest that you "touch not the unclean thing."

"It is poison. Appearing in the 'Temperance Advocate' of January is this note: 'In interviews at the conclusion of a symposium on alcohol conducted by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Merrill Moore and Dr. Abraham Myerson, of Boston, Mass., and Dr. Leo Alexander, of Harvard University, declared that the federal food and drug administration should require all distillers to place on their bottles a label warning that the liquor is a narcotic drug which is definitely harmful. Dr. Moore added that there is no reason why alcohol should not be labelled a poison in the same way that arsenic, carbolic acid, and other poisons are labelled. If this were done, it would be a step toward temperance and a decrease in our terrifically high rate of hospitalization of alcoholic addicts. Alcohol is 1,000 times a greater problem than any other narcotic drug, and the attack on it should begin with such simple approaches as 'Warning, poison' labels on liquor bottles, and perhaps on cocktail glasses."

"Now, if the stuff is poison, it is certainly unclean. You would not be giving yourself a clean deal by drinking carbolic acid, even in moderate quantities, and diluted with water or soda. Neither would it be a clean deal to give such a carbolic acid or arsenic solution to a friend. In brief, give the poisonous stuff a wide berth. 'Touch not the unclean thing!'"

"It is a killer. It is cause for sad reflection that the most careful driver, travelling in his car along our broad highways with his children, or other people's children, or friends and neighbors, is in constant danger of meeting a murderer behind a wheel. That man in the other car was a respectable law-abiding citizen an hour ago, but since then he has yielded to an inner craving for alcohol, and it has made him a half-crazed, hurtling menace. He may not kill anyone, if fortunately his swervings do not bring him into collision. But if he swerves too far, and at the wrong time, he is more than likely to kill; he may kill the occupants of another car, possibly separating for life a father from his children, or children from their mother. Or it may happen that others will escape, and he will be the victim."

"That young man may be a soldier or an airman. Such was the case a few weeks ago when a young woman in a Calgary hospital testified that her friend, a young man of the R.C.A.F., had been killed when their car had left the road going at 80 m.p.h. She mentioned that the boys had called, just prior to the sad accident, at an hotel, and had taken some liquor. The driver escaped death, but faces a charge of manslaughter."

"Sometimes the killer alcohol wrecks his destruction as the cause of suicide. History is loaded with cases of this type. He had been despondent for the past week, then he took to heavy drinking, until his body was taken from the river just below the high bridge."

"In Chatham, on Christmas eve, a man had a quarrel with his wife, and cut his throat from ear to ear. Strangely enough, he did not die, but, on leaving the hospital, was charged with attempted suicide. The crown attorney stated: 'He's not a heavy drinker, but when he drinks, he becomes jealous and quarrelsome.'"

"Drink is a killer in more ways than one. It may make a man 'jealous and quarrelsome,' or it may make him stupid; it may cause him to act in an obscene manner, or it may just cause him to act the fool; it may lead him to violence, or it may just make him cranky with the loss of his job; with the consequent loss of his job, it may cause him to go home and beat his wife and ill-treat his children, or it may put him down on the curb, or in the gutter. But in any of these, or a dozen other possible events, liquor has been killing — killing a man's decency and self-respect."

"Killers are unclean. 'Touch not the unclean thing.'"

"It causes poverty. The distiller would laugh up his sleeve at such a statement as this, for he looks upon liquor as the prize wealth producer. But while it fills the coffers of the makers and vendors, it empties the pocket of the average drinker, and the only thing the drunkard and the distiller have in common is the red nose and blotched face.

"The salesman who sells you worthless stocks or bonds, robbing you of your life's savings, is called a criminal, a thief, a scoundrel of the lowest calibre, and is credited with wrecking homes, ruining the security of honest people, and is sometimes sent to jail. The brewer wrecks far more than the bond salesman, but he is allowed to advertise his destruction, his trade is sanctioned and even encouraged by governments for the sake of the revenue; and he is actually permitted membership in some churches."

"If the preachers there would preach the Gospel — the whole counsel of God — the brewer would be extremely uncomfortable in his pew. When such a thing happens, an impasse develops, until it becomes clear that either
